Introduction about the PADI Instructor level courses

- • PADI Assistant instructor

It is the first part of the IDC; it introduces you to the teaching techniques for skill and knowledge development. The course concentrates on duties and programs AIs may conduct independently.

This course expands your abilities beyond what you have learned during the divemaster course, it prepare you for becoming a PADI instructor.

- • Open Water Scuba Instructor

The OWSI introduces you to the entire PADI System and focuses on further developing your abilities as a professional dive educator. You can enrol into this program after completing the PADI assistant instructor course, or if you are an instructor from another training agency and would like to become a PADI instructor, so you can join us in the PADI Open water scuba instructor program

- • IDC (Instructor Development course)

The Instructor Development Course is the combination of the AI and OWSI program.

It is the most comprehensive instructor training program in the diving industry. You get to learn the skills and knowledge needed for becoming a professional educator.

This is a learning process and you get out from the course what you put into it.

- • IE (Instructor Examination)

After completing the IDC or the Open water scuba instructor program, you need to attend a PADI instructor examination, which is held by PADI staff.

This is an objective evaluation where you get to demonstrate your ability to function as a PADI instructor, and then you will be issued your PADI open water scuba instructor license.

- • EFR & Care For children instructor

The Emergency First Response Instructor Course provides qualified individuals with the additional training necessary to teach the Emergency First Response Primary Care (CPR), Secondary Care (First Aid) and Care for Children courses.

- • Specialty instructor and master scuba diver trainer preparation course.

If you would like to teach things that you like most in diving, and be more valuable on the competitive market, you have to be able to teach PADI specialty. We will teach you how to conduct, organize, teach and market for your specialty training courses. Aim for the PADI Master Scuba Diver Trainer (MSDT)

• IDC-Staff instructor course

Are you enjoying teaching professional courses..?

If you think you are, then come and join us for the IDC staff instructor course and become a key member in shaping new PADI instructors. IDC staff instructor can teach the PADI assistant instructor courses. He can as well assist in all aspects of the instructor development course.

The course will enhance your skill as a PADI instructor plus you will learn new skills necessary for developing instructors.
